A match game will be played on the curling rink next Saturday - married vs. single. An interesting and close game is expected.

George McKay lost a black cat with a star on the forehead last week. He offers a reward for its recovery.

Real estate matters seem to be stirring a little since the railway contract has been ratified. A few transactions have taken place during the past week. Messrs. Peterson and Hanafin, real estate agents, having sold six lots on the Main estate at a good price.

In the notice of the Saskatchewan Herald's editorial notice on this paper in our last issue, by mistake, we are made to call it an "illustrated" instead of "illustrated" attack. Well, in one sense it is an illustration of small mindedness, spite and spite, so let it pass.

During the last week in December, 52,000 letters were distributed in the Winnipeg Post Office, by a staff of thirty clerks. In the Prince Albert Office in the same week, 1,072 letters were arranged and despatched by one man, Mr. Way, the efficient and obliging Postmaster.

Messrs. Miller & Baird have secured the assistance of Mr. Chas. Woodman, who has had long experience in large breweries both in London and Dublin, and have now on hand a quantity of hop beer brewed by him, which they are prepared to sell either wholesale or retail and deliver to any part of the town.

The machinery for Messrs. Moore & Macdonnell's mill will have arrived by the time it reaches the mill. There are in all some thirty sets of machinery which, when it arrives, will foot up somewhere about 1,000,000. The cutting capacity of the mill will be increased from 15,000 to 20,000 bushels per day.

We understand that Col. Spruce and Mr. Hindman, the engineer of the South Saskatchewan Valley Railway Company, are busily engaged preparing plans for the railway lands, and that the conveyances from the land owners to the company will shortly be executed, after which we presume the lots will be put in the market, and a real estate boom on a limited scale will no doubt take place.

Mr. Belanger, Chief Factor, H. B. C. at Fort Cumberland, arrived last night by dog train from that Post, with the semi-annual packet. Not very long ago, this was the only means of communication between the North West and the outside world, and the arrival was looked forward to, as can be imagined, with the greatest anxiety. These packets are forwarded from one H. B. C. post to another thousands of miles over this vast Territory, by means of dog trains. Mr. Belanger goes back in a few days to visit friends.

Five boats arrived in Prince Albert on Monday from their run on the new Charley Hill River, Hudson's Bay Territory, having travelled sixteen days by dog train. The first has been five years in that region, during which time he has baptised 150 Cree Indians, having now a congregation of 200 under his care. He came from the sunny south of France, from beside the blue waters of the Mediterranean direct to these northern latitudes, and must have felt slight change of climate. After a short rest, the boat will go to his new mission at Fort Pitt.

A meeting of old proprietors was held at George's Hotel, South Branch, on Friday evening last, for the purpose of meeting Mr. Miller, managing director of South Saskatchewan Valley Railway Company, and of entering into an agreement, the terms of which had been previously arranged, by which the town site was to be sold on sections 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000.

Wheat has dropped down to $1 per bushel.

Mr. Jas. McIntosh left for Qu'Appelle last Wednesday.

Large quantities of freight are constantly arriving in town.

Last Wednesday evening an Indian dance party took place at Qu'Appelle.

A great number of teams are drawing cordwood from the other side of the river.

A beam in the Qu'Appelle station, it is expected, will take place in the spring.

J. F. Kennedy has bought a pair of dogs. Look out for him on moonlight nights.

A practice for the entertainment in the Methodist church took place last Friday evening.

Saturday was quite a lively day in town, the merchants generally doing a good business.

The night owls have taken a sudden drop. Something wrong. Perhaps Sergeant John can explain.

A large number of freighters arrived from Qu'Appelle on Saturday with goods for J. F. McPhail.

A meeting of Kinitio Lodge, A. F. & A. M., will be held on Friday, Feb. 2nd. Visiting brethren are invited.

The grain mills are kept very busy, both of them running day and night, turning out a splendid quality of flour.

The attendance at the billiard hall is as high as ever, and has been kept up the looking after the "whang" and things in general.

Teachers have been invited by the supply of flour for the Indian Agency, which the merchants and farmers will be pleased to learn.

We are glad to learn that Mr. William Stewart has almost recovered from his severe attack of illness, though afraid so yet to venture out.

Mr. Thomas Taylor left for Qu'Appelle last Friday evening, on business connected with the firm of Stewart, Elden & Co. He will be away about two days.

The entertainment in aid of the Methodist Sunday School will take place on February 15th, when quite a number of our local talent will take part.

Going to a client having occurred to one of our readers, we are unable to give the public the usual six pages. Next week the paper will be issued as usual.

The mail goes in being fairly patronized, though not so well as we would wish to see it considering the large number of people who live here, and the proximity of the weather.

Mr. Wm. Walker, advertising manager for Stuen & Boyce, publishers of the Winnipeg "Globe", was at the Hotel House, Qu'Appelle, Jan. 31st. He expects to do a good business in the N.W.T. and the eastern provinces before the summer months.

We have been informed that Capt. T. McKay has expressed his willingness that the J. G. Davis & Co. price upon by him on New Year's Day, be again compared for one year after the thirty day of December, 1882.

The skating rink is being kept in excellent condition, and attendance has been taken of the moonlight evenings for the enjoyment of this exhilarating sport. We would like to see the young ladies come out a little more numerous, as we have heard the boys complaining of their absence.

We learn from a lumberer employed at one of Messrs. Moore & Macdonnell's camps at Little Red River, about fifty miles from Prince Albert, that this has been a good year for the lumbering business so far. At his camp they have up to the time he left out and loaded to the banks of the river about 3,000 logs, and as the other camps, on the Sturgeon river and lake, about 1,000,000 more. They expect to get out this season about 25,000 or 30,000 logs, which when sawed will produce about 3,500,000 feet of lumber against about 1,000,000 feet of last year, so that there is every appearance of a lumber year being plentiful the coming season, which will give a great impetus to building operations in Prince Albert.

We have received a copy of the Prince Albert Times, a new paper just started at

THE PRINCE ALBERT TIMES.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Dominion Parliament assembled on the 8th of February, for the dispatch of business.

We wish to inform the public that we have severed our connection with Mr. Fitz Cochrane. The public are kindly requested to send all communications and other business direct to the office.

The Dominion Government has granted one million acres of land alongside of the Prince Albert Settlement, on the Saskatchewan River to the Land and Colonization Company of Canada, organized by the Rev. A. J. Bray, of Montreal. The Company has a capital of $5,000,000.

Applications for Letters Patent have been made by the Manitoba and North West Coal Mining Company, the North West Lumbering Company, and the Alberta Mining Company. The latter Company has been organized by Col. Dennis, late Deputy Minister of the Interior, for the purpose of acquiring by purchase, lease, location, or otherwise, a tract or tracts of mineral and coal lands in the District of Alberta, in the North-West Territories, or elsewhere in the Dominion of Canada, and to work and develop the resources of the same.

Amongst the new railway projects, one to incorporate a company to be called the "Quebec and James Bay Railway Company," to construct a railway from a point on the "Quebec and Lake St. John Railway" to a point on or near the coast of James Bay, and another proposed line is from Callander to the same destination, the promoters of which are desirous of securing grants from both the Ontario and Dominion Governments. We think it almost a pity that the Prince Albert proposed line to Churchill has been allowed to drop.

The appointment of the Bishop of Truro as Archbishop of Canterbury has been received with general satisfaction by all parties in the Church. Ritualists approve because Dr. Benson's personal sympathies are with the High Church. Their opponents approve because his views of his administrative duties as Primate insure his being practically a Broad Churchman. Mr. Gladstone receives some applause for his magnanimity in appointing a Tory, but Mr. Gladstone cares far more for ecclesiastical than political orthodoxy. The latest information makes Dr. Benson's acceptance, heretofore thought certain, doubtful.

Our exchanges by last mail contain the intelligence of the death of President Gambetta. The death of a statesman of such ability and experience is a loss to any country, and though the French Republic is not now in need of his support to the same extent as formerly, his country would probably have been all the better for a continuation of his services. There was, of course, the danger of his some time or other aiming at a dictatorship, and the danger of his becoming directly or indirectly the cause of another Franco-German war. Of the former there was little probability; of the latter there was at least a possibility.

The Bytander has been resurrected, and in its first number devotes considerable space to the North West. It takes an ill-concealed delight in publishing the fact of the collapse of the large majority of the colonization companies that have been set afloat from time to time. The Globe, in noticing the reappearance of the Bytander, takes credit to itself for having largely assisted in bringing about the above results. Our Toronto contemporary might have gone still further and boasted of its active assistance in retarding the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, diverting emigration to the neighboring Republic, and thwarting every scheme for the settlement of this glorious country, this goodly inheritance, but having done all this, and having ignominiously failed in its attempts, we do not know that the Globe has anything particular to brag about.

CANADIAN NORTH WEST.

The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has in self-defence felt compelled to issue a pamphlet in order to refute the many and gross misstatements put forth by the Northern Pacific Railway Company. The misrepresentations referred to are to be found in a pamphlet, printed in New York, and issued by the Northern Pacific Railway, and bearing the high sounding title of "The Reliable Guide to the American North West." The pamphlet is a small, well printed one, with a map showing the line of the Northern Pacific Railway from Duluth at the head of Lake Superior westward to the ocean, and has been very widely circulated by the agents of the sugarship lines between Liverpool and New York. This "reliable guide," so-called, states that the climate of Manitoba consists of seven months of Arctic winter and five months of cold weather, that the mouth of the Red River is frozen solid, when the head and middle of the stream are broken up and floating swiftly under the southern spring warmth; the ice dams at and around Winnipeg; in a vast obstruction like a mountain barrier; the water gets back and covers all the surrounding country, drowning stock, floating away dwellings, buildings and fences, and driving the farmers off to the tops of hills to save their lives, and so on in a continuous strain of falsifications and absurdities. In the pamphlet issued by the Department of Agriculture abundant testimony is given to prove the utter worthlessness of the Northern Pacific Railway's "precious guide book." In the attempt to check the tremendous tide of immigration that has been setting in from the Old Country towards our Canadian North West during the last few years the Northern Pacific people have stooped to a mighty small piece of business. But we are glad to know that this contemptible fraud has been so thoroughly exposed, and is so utterly powerless to stem that tide to which we have alluded. And what the pamphlet of the Department of Agriculture says in favor of Manitoba applies equally well to those districts or territories lying to the west of it. As a matter of fact after January has been passed Manitoba rejoices in two or three months of brilliant, unclouded skies almost continuously, the snow disappearing in March or early in April. The spring comes on at once and ploughing begins, from the first to the middle or latter part of April, which is a fortnight earlier than in the Ottawa region of the Province of Ontario. The spring is short. The summer months are part of May, June, July, August and September; autumn lasts until November, when the regular frost sets in. The harvest takes place in August. This is a statement of the well known facts as respects the seasons. And coming west to the Saskatchewan Territory we do not know that we suffer any by comparison to the older settled Province of Manitoba. A country in which cattle live in the open during the winter, and from which they can obtain nourishment from under the snow from the nutritious grasses which have grown during summer, may have a severe winter climate, but it can scarcely be called "arctic." It is only necessary to refer to the statistics collected by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to note the fertility of the soil, the bountifulness of the harvests, the mildness of the climate, and, in fact, all that human being could require to make himself comfortable in the world. All the statements made by the Department of Agriculture are backed up by reliable testimony borne by personal observation. Among the many who bear testimony to the excellence of the character of our soil, and to the salubrity of our climate, are to be found Americans as well as Englishmen who speak only in terms of the highest praise of the Canadian North West.

THE CARPET SWEEPER.

The other day when Bridget the valiant was engaged Mrs. Jones answered the door-bell herself, and found a glib, silver-tongued agent had taken possession of her steps and was checking something in a memorandum book when she answered his fluent ring.

"Is your mamma in, miss?" he asked with a pensive smile.

Mrs. Jones was rather taken aback, she was so accustomed on such occasions to the stereotyped question, "Is the lady of the house at home?" that she hardly knew what to say.

"I see she is not," continued the stranger, with a look of keen disappointment overclouding his face. "I had wished to see her in regard to a domestic I sell. You with your fresh, youthful complexion, would hardly need it."

"You can't sell anything here," said Mrs. Jones, recovering herself; "we never buy from agents."

"No! Well I'm sorry; for consumption has marked me for its own," said the man, with a melancholy cough. "Are you nearly out of Bibles? I'm trying to do a little good in the world before I leave it by selling the best and cheapest revision of the sacred—"

"No! I don't want any Bibles," snapped Mrs. J., "and I'll be obliged to you if you'll take your things off the steps so I can close the door."

"Certainly, certainly, Miss—youth and beauty; and yet there is a sad, dreamy look that tells of billiousness; new those liver pills—"

"Will you go?" exclaimed Mrs. Jones, as she tried to get the door closed. "O, if I had only had the broom!"

"Broom! broom!" cried the stranger, with a dramatic gesture; "who says broom! not this young and lovely being in the heart of a great city! Brooms, my dear young lady, belong to the dark ages! You never, never should wield so common an implement! Let me sell you a carpet sweeper—an invention that will remove the dust of ages without fatigue or discomfort to your self—a patent hinged, self-guiding, nickel-plated, premium medal carpet sweeper. Lovely creature don't disgrace those graceful hands with a broom when for a few paltry dollars you can buy a carpet sweeper!"

"I couldn't help it, Jephtha," explained Mrs. Jones when her husband fell over the new carpet sweeper and landed in the basement among the ruins. "I didn't want it any more than a cat wants two tails, but you ought to have heard the creature talk! I believe I'd have bought a camelopard if he'd had one for sale and asked me to; he just talked me into it."

But she never told Jones what he said.

SINGULAR ADVENTURE.

A newly-married pair, who arrived on their honeymoon trip at a celebrated watering place not a hundred miles from Burlington, at a time when accommodation was at a premium, had a mattress spread for them by a compassionate inn-keeper in one of his baths. In the middle of the night the house was alarmed by loud shouts proceeding from the nuptial chamber. What was the matter? Well, this. The young bride, wishing to ring for a maid, had caught hold of what she supposed to be the bell rope, and pulled it sharply. Unhappily for her and her spouse, it was the cord of a shower-bath above their heads and forthwith down plumped such a deluge of cold water as would thaw a clamper upon the most devoted of honeymoon couples. Her husband, in dismay, caught frantically at another cord on his side of their extemporized couch, but the only response was an equally liberal deluge of water that drenched both of them. The unhappy pair then screamed in union, and the bride, in the excitement of the moment, uttered sentiments anything but complimentary to her fond spouse. When the servants came they were just in time to save the unlucky pair from drowning, for the room was already half full of water, the wife was perched like a monkey on her husband's back, uttering lamentable cries, while her good man fumbled in the dark trying to find his door.

PATRICIA KEMBALL.

A NOVEL.

By T. Lynn Minton, author of "Maid of Cheyenne," "The True History of Joshua Davidson," etc.

NOV. VII.

"Indeed, Mr. Hamley, I am willing and ready to do anything—that I can," said Patricia, with a sudden hesitancy that explained everything.

"No doubt," he struck his thumb into his waistcoat armhole. "But that is just where the hitch is—what can you do?"

She turned pale. "Nothing," she said, looking down.

"Of course not! I know that; only you need not have confessed it. Such an education as yours, scrambling and rambling about the country like a tinkler's daughter, getting wrecked here and there—like a bale of cotton there, and knowing no better than to have a cold burst of motion for a gentleman's dinner after a long journey—how could you have learnt anything? Why you have not learnt even your own trade of lady! But never mind. I can't do it. I should not like to see dear Dora obliged to work for her living—ladies ought to be waited for," he put this in gallantly, standing there on his six feet one and penderies breath of shoulders; "and your aunt may have the same feeling for you. If she has, Abby Hamley can't do it, and you can't, either."

"Enough for you, and," finding the money in his pocket, "the Hamley funds can bear your additional burden, I dare say. Now here comes the fly. Are all your things ready? Say good-bye, my dear, to the old and make your courtesy to the new. Not me, tears if you please. I can't abide a crying lady—it makes one damp!"

"To himself he said, almost aloud—"Lord! that the fool should cry to exchange this livery hole for Abby Holmes."

CHAPTER VII.

THE HOME-COMING.

The journey from Baranoid to Milwaukee was a cross-country one; consequently full of delays, and tedious. There had not been much either in the scenery or the circumstances to cause Mr. Hamley or interest Patricia. When he had pulled off both the windows, tucked himself and his charge well round in heavy railway rugs, bought the day's papers for himself and a trawling novel for her, he had done all that politeness and the circumstances of the case demanded of him; and Patricia had borne the feeling of oppression and suffocation consequent on his care as the sacrifice of self due to him for gratitude. But not even gratitude could make her read the book he gave her. Her education had been so thoroughly neglected with regard to modern fiction, that she had no Walter Scott and one of two Dickens' earlier works, she had never read a novel in her life, and had no desire to begin. They seemed such wretched make-believe to her—much as an opera seems to a young person of ordinary common sense perception and a keen idea of fitness, who sees and hears for the first time the hero die in an arena and the heroine go mad in a relative. All child, therefore, was to look out of the window, watching while she could; feeling, as every citizen with its well known name was passed and left behind, that she was lengthening her chain of sorrow, cutting off so much from her life; and when she could no longer watch, dreaming. Meanwhile Mr. Hamley slept, and when he slept he snored.

"It was a dreary, dull day; one of those late autumn days which seem to have suddenly leapt into winter since yesterday. Here and there a tree, bright with gold and brown, had kept its foliage in a time-off feathery way still about its branches; but for the most part only a few deep red or russet-purple leaves guttered in the chilly air, like the last good-byes of autumn. Chimp-puff square-headed fig-wort, a few late hawkweeds, and some shabby tufts of milkwort were the sole representatives of the gracious flowers of spring and summer. The day was raw and damp. Not a loud twittered in the hedges; and the looser fly looked as if it would never rise again. All this dreary dullness, all this melancholy of earth and sky, seemed quite natural to Patricia. She would have been surprised if the sun had shone and the birds had sung, and the earth had been gay and sweet with flowers. It was not an excessive thought, but it was there all the same—the thought that nature was in mourning as well as herself; and that her uncle's death was more to her than the world at Baranoid."
